Scouts to Collect Used Greeting Cards

Troop 41, the Mokena Girl Scouts, would like to gather Christmas cards. These are sent to children's hospitals where the children occupy many dull moments by making scrap books and various other articles.

If anyone would like to give their Christmas cards to this project, the Scouts will pick them up by calling Mrs. George Reir, Mrs. Wesley Cappel or Mrs. Edward Hentsch.

Last year the cards were sent to the Swedish children's home at Joliet, and the year before to the Martha Washington on crippled children's home in Chicago.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

It is my suggestion that the business men of Mokena place ashes in front of their places of business, sidewalks and streets, so that people can come into their stores and trade, safely.

HOWARD SCHEIBLICH

PRESS IS ASSET TO COMMUNITY, LYONS SAYS

Few assets are more important to a community than a good press and few more unfortunate than to be stuck with a bad one.

This was the observation of Louis M. Lyons, curator of the Nieman foundation at Harvard university during the annual Sigma Delta Chi convention held at Miami Beach, Fla., recently.

He was a member of a panel which discussed press responsibility.

Panel members criticized newspapers which fail to meet the responsibility of informing the public by being "too frothy and superficial," they rapped radio for endless repetition in advertising and denounced "all agencies which feast on a diet of crime and violence or take themselves so seriously as to make believe the seamy side of life doesn't exist."

Fraternity fellow awards were given Benjamin M. McKelway, Washington (D. C.) Star, Howard Blakeslee, AP science editor, and Walter Lippmann, New York Herald Tribune.

In his keynote address, Carl R. Kesler, Chicago Daily News editorial writer declared, "The American press is far better than its critics and some of its readers appear to think."

He said America has "the ablest and freest press the world has ever seen, more accurate, better written more genuinely concerned with the public welfare than any press has ever been."

NEW ROOM ADDED TO THE ORLAND BANK

The following directors were elected at the annual meeting of the Orland Park State Bank stockholders Monday morning:

Everyone is welcome, reports Thomas Powers, president, particularly any parents who wish to have their youngsters take instrumental lessons. Plans will be discussed for a Music Festival in Mokena similar to the one held last spring.

The following program will be presented at the meeting: Selection by beginner's ensemble, violins, Carol Gilmore, Michael Dina, Bonnie Bruce, Shirley Peterson; clarinets, Leonard Hemmrich, Phyllis Hackert; piano, Martha Jo Doyle; Angel Serenade, Bragda, Paul Cowhig; trombone; Piere's Serenade, Ronald Knackmus, clarinetist; festival plans by Mrs. Ray Lemke and Miss Catherine Lilley; "The Violin" a report by Carol Gilmore; Dancal's 5th Air and Variation, Donald Lehmann, violinist, and a selection by the group.

Library Loans Best Of Current Books

Have you ever wondered how it feels to be a princess? "Crawfie," the governess of the world's best known princesses, has told their story in a new book, "The Little Princesses."

Miss Crawford has succeeded very well in giving the world her personal account of the every day life of England's royal family. She tells all the joys and heartbreaks of being one of the world famous and leaves her readers both envying and pitying England's princesses.

"The Little Princesses" is one of a group of best sellers recently purchased by the Mokena Book club and has been put on the shelves of the Mokena library.

School Committee to Make Final Plans

The steering committee of the high school project for this section will meet in the Frankfort public school next Wednesday evening.

At that time they will make final plans as to the solution of the high school problem for the townships of New Lenox, Frankfort and part of Manhattan.

Coin Station Calls To Cost 10 Cents

The Illinois Bell Telephone company will change its coin telephone today and Friday, January 11 and 12, to operate under the new 10 cent charge for local calls in Mokena, Frankfort and New Lenox. R. F. McQueen, company manager said this week.

Local calls from a coin telephone will cost one dime or two nickels.

McQueen emphasized that the change in rates will affect only coin phones which represent less than 5 of Mokena's 391 telephones; less than 9 of Frankfort's 570 phones, and less than 10 of New Lenox's 735 phones.

"The 10-cent charge for local calls from coin telephones is a result of Illinois' Bell's rate request filed with the Illinois Commerce Commission in November, 1948, and a decision of a Circuit Court," McQueen said. "These changes bring to an end legal proceedings in connection with our 1948 rate request."

The manager pointed out that all Illinois Bell coin telephones throughout the State would be changed to 10 cent operation this month. Because mechanical adjustments and new instructions on cards are necessary at each coin location, the change-over cannot be made at one time," he said.

LOCAL PEOPLE ATTEND O'NEILL RECEPTION

A group of 200 friends attended the reception tendered Lottie Holman O'Neill, January 5, in the ball room of the Le and hotel, at Springfield, on the occasion of her taking office as a state senator.

The guests enjoyed entertainment, and the buffet luncheon served during the reception.

Many representatives and senators called to extend their congratulations during the day.

Mrs. O'Neill is the only woman senator serving this term and is the second woman ever to be elected state senator in Illinois.

Several of those who attended the reception also saw Warren Wood installed as speaker of the house, and heard the governor's message on state affairs.

The bride wore a fawn color gabardine suit, with black accessories. Her corsage was made of white baby mums and she wore a three strand necklace of pearls, a gift from the groom. She was attended by Mrs. Bernice Anderson, a sister of the groom, who was dressed in a light blue suit and wore a mum corsage. Gene Flint, brother of the bride, served the groom as best man.

A large group of guests attended the reception held in the Frankfort village hall in the evening after the bridal couple returned from Morris. They plan to make their home with the bride's parents in Frankfort.

Will Loan Color Film Free to Groups

A new sound color motion picture, "Wheels of Progress" depicting the freight service of the Rock Island Lines, will be released shortly by the Public Relations department of the railroad.

The 20 minute movie was made last summer by a camera crew which covered practically the entire 8,000 mile railroad system in 14 midwestern states. Unusual shots of the Rock Island's high speed Rocket freights rolling along the right of way; interesting closeups of the operations of the two new multi-million dollar classification yards at Silvis, Illinois and Armourdale, Kansas and agricultural and industrial areas served by the railroad are highlighted.

The film will be circulated free to various civic organizations, Chambers of Commerce, and fraternal and traffic clubs. Copies will be available through the Chicago office of W. E. Hayes, public relations director.

Zenith Film corporation of Chicago made the 16 mm. footage and the production was written and directed by John A. McGee.

The bride wore a fawn color gabardine suit, with black accessories. Her corsage was made of white baby mums and she wore a three strand necklace of pearls, a gift from the groom. She was attended by Mrs. Bernice Anderson, a sister of the groom, who was dressed in a light blue suit and wore a mum corsage. Gene Flint, brother of the bride, served the groom as best man.

A large group of guests attended the reception held in the Frankfort village hall in the evening after the bridal couple returned from Morris. They plan to make their home with the bride's parents in Frankfort.

The analysis of the village water supply by the Illinois Department of Public Health shows contamination; causes are found to be cistern water supply systems being cross-connected to the village supply system.

C. F. Rees, formerly an adviser in Randolph county, will succeed Mr. Hughes in Blue Island. He plans to return next summer to manage a 1200 acre place near Lansing for the Chicago Title and Trust company, but his main interest will be operating his Florida farm.

Most of Mr. Hughes' activities have been in the northern part of Cook county but he is well known in many of the county communities and he and his wife will be missed as they have taken an active part in community affairs. They were presented with a Spartan radio and a purse of money by their many friends in the farm bureau.

FORMER NEW LENOX COUPLE WED 60 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Holmes, of Taft, California, celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary recently in the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. She was the former Louise Gillett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Gillett, who lived in New Lenox for many years.

After Mr. and Mrs. Holmes were married they stayed in New Lenox for 12 years, then moving to Corrinne, Utah, where he was in the grocery and hardware business. Last year they went to California. Besides their daughter, Mrs. Minner, they have two sons, Ray, of San Diego and Wendell, of Corrinne.

Must Alter Cross- Join Water Systems

Several analyses of the Mokena village water have been made by the Illinois department of health in recent years, with reports varying from good to bad. The water supply tank has been completely repaired, cleaned and painted recently.

The latest test made by the department shows that the water is contaminated now and they report that the condition is caused by residents having their supply of cistern water cross-connected with the village water supply system.

To enable the village to supply clean, uncontaminated water, the state department is giving notice to all property owners that the cross-connections that are causing the trouble must be eliminated.

After the program the group had lunch together at one table at Old Heidelberg. The program they attended is called "Housewife's Holiday" and it proved to be just that for the Auxiliary members and their guests.

The Woman's Auxiliary to William Martin Post 725 VFW will give a card and bunco party in the Vets' hall, Saturday night, January 13. All games will start promptly at 8:30. Refreshments will be served. The public is cordially invited.

The 50th anniversary of the dedication of the Marley church was observed Sunday with special services and a potluck dinner.

The outstanding event started with the morning service and the celebration of Holy Communion. The special music rendered by the choir was the same as that sung by the choir 50 years ago at the dedication. It was, "Not a Sparrow Faleth."

Following the service, dinner was served in the dining room to about 100 guests at long tables. Appointments were in gold and white. A large cake decorated in gold, and topped with a picture of the church centered the head table.

After the dinner favorite hymns of the older members were sung. A special vocal number was presented by a quartette composed of Mrs. Russell Laufer, Mrs. Edward Sprout, Mrs. Jack Gardner and Miss Helen Swanberg.

Letters of congratulation were read from Rev. M. A. Travis of Saint Jo, Texas; Rev. and Mrs. Henry L. Rust of Sherburn, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. Homer Sabin of West Collingswood, New Jersey; Dr. Tracy Patrick, Norwalk, Ohio; Mrs. Viola Rowley Crosby of Boston, Mass.; Rev. and Mrs. Ruthven Chalmers of Spencer, N. Y.; Rev. Paul Saunders of Anthony, New Mexico; and Rev. Ernest L. Snodgrass, of Chicago. The ministers are all former of the Marley church. Rev. Travis was pastor at the time of the dedication, having served on the building committee.

Those present at the celebration, who were also present 50 years ago at the dedication were, Mrs. C. F. Haley, Vincent Barney and Miss Marion Barney of Oak Park, James Bell, Mrs. Ellen Nelson and Miss Agnes Haley, Richard Gorham who was present 50 years ago, was unable to attend due to illness.

Mr. Gorham holds the record of longest membership in the Marley church today. He also served on the building committee with C. F. Haley, C. H. Marshall, Alex Haley and Rev. Travis.

The laying of the corner stone of the new building of the Baptist church in Marley took place at 2:30 pm, on May 25, 1900. Services of dedication were held January 6, 1901. There was a good attendance in spite of rainy weather and muddy roads. Three services were held during the day. Members of the choir who sang that day were Agnes Haley, Viola Rowley, Isabel Rowley, Nellie Haley, Mrs. Grace Haley, Alex Haley, C. F. Haley, Frank Savage and Walter Rowley. The organist was Mrs. Walter Rowley.

Thus 50 years have passed in the present Marley church building. It is a past to be proud of. The ideals set forth by the early members are not forgotten and are carried on by the many good workers in the Marley church today.

The Marley church congregation, however, is much older than the church. On October 5, 1833, the Yankee settlement met to organize a Baptist church. In 1835, the Hadley Baptist church was built and the congregation worshipped there until the new church was built in Marley.

The Colleges Responsibility

The Reverend Robert H. Sweeney, president of the University of Portland, recently told a student body assembly that the University of Berlin, which sponsored the philosopher Hegel, and the University of Bonn, which sponsored Marx, are the two universities most responsible for these theories of government which make the state supreme over the individual. "The universities are responsible for the ideas that created the savage struggle of today," he stated.

Father Sweeney then reminded the students that their primary aim in attending a university should be to learn how to live, rather than how to make a living, and added, "We have not tolerated and we will not tolerate a professor on our staff who teaches state socialism or totalitarianism."

This is a refreshing attitude in an age in which many teachers seek to undermine the faith of young people in the economic and political systems which made this country great and free—and which, incidentally, made our colleges possible. It is an attitude which should be general.

Town + Farm
by EVERETT MITCHELL
Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

IT PAYS to advertise, as every businessman knows. That's why every businessman puts his best foot forward when he's going to meet the public—especially at fairs, expositions and trade shows. The farmer is a businessman, too, and although he doesn't extensively advertise his products, he usually puts his wares on exhibit at county fairs and agricultural shows.

When a dairyman shows his animals at the county fair, he's advertising not only his herd, but all the dairy products which come from it. The same holds true of the beef cattleman, the poultryman, the fruit farmer and anyone else who competes for blue ribbons and other awards.

Show Your Best
If the public—and your neighbors, who are prospective customers and boosters, too—like what they see in your booth or fair corral, then your advertising is paying off in good will, confidence and potential sales. But if you show animals that are unfitted and untrained for exhibition, your advertising is backfiring.

Cattle that are to be shown at late summer and early fall expositions this year should undergo a sort of training program a month to six weeks ahead of show time. In the first place, they should be barn-fitted to allow them to become accustomed to conditions they'll face in the cattle barn at the fair. Sudden changes in management, atmosphere and feed will put an animal off-feed and show him up to disadvantage.

If the animals have long hair, blanket them a month to six weeks before the show. Curry the coat with a stiff brush followed by a daily hand massage to get rid of excess hair and bring out a gloss to the coat. Wash out stains with soap and water, being sure to rinse well. After a month of this kind of treatment, you'll be proud to show off your herd as an example of the kind of products you turn out on your farm!

tend this meeting. Reports will be heard from the various organizations of the church and the annual election of officers will be held.

Under The Cross Of Malta

We have been striving to get 100% paid up membership as soon as possible. National Headquarters are giving incentives for members to go out and bring in paid up membership.

Miniature medals will be awarded to VFW members who sign up five, ten or twenty five new, reinstated or continuous members for 1951. A bronze medal for five, silver finish for ten, and gold finish medal for twenty five members.

During the holiday season and before, most everyone had extra expenses, so we did not push for our 100% membership, but now if we can reach our goal and go over by March 29th, we can give our National Commander a very nice birthday gift.

Commander Ralls is all kept up over the Community Service contest. Our post is going to get into this contest too. Come out to the meeting Thursday, January 11th and help your commander to put the program into action.—Elmo L. Saarela, publicity.

GALVA, ILL.—Safety of livestock begins on the farm, and this portable step-ramp chute is designed for the safe loading of animals when shipping from farm to market. It can be built easily if constructed according to the above specifications and materials purchased in the sizes and amounts listed above in the Bill of Material. When done in this manner waste is eliminated. Entire cost of constructing the above portable farm chute which was used in a field-day demonstration here, is $70—$50 for lumber, $15 for automobile axle and wheels and $5 for nails and bolts. The step-ramp loading chute was developed by Chicago's Union Stock Yards, and is patterned after the stationary step-ramp type constructed there as part of the Chicago yard's safety program to reduce bruises in handling inaugurated several months ago.

"SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

A significant victory for those sincere leaders of small business during the past years has been gained by the passage of the anti-merger bill. This bill plugs loopholes in the old established Clayton Act.

The need for this new bill just passed by Congress is interesting. The original Clayton Act prohibits monopolies from swallowing their smaller competitors by buying up the stock in these companies.

But the problem still existed despite this prohibition. C. W. Harder, a Chicago lawyer, based on a Supreme Court decision.

That decision was that the Clayton Act did not prohibit a monopoly from buying up the assets of a small competitor. Then, after the assets were bought, if the monopoly acted before the Federal Trade Commission acted, the stock control would be taken over. Thus, mergers were completed with no recourse by the public, for whose protection all anti-trust laws are written. This loophole is now plugged.

Don't be misled by the first official public apathy to the pre-Christmas speech made by Herbert Hoover on the need for this country to prepare to defend itself militarily and economically, and to stop trying to carry on with a global WPA.

Hoover's speech bit deep; will be referred to again and again in debates coming up in the new Congress convening on Monday. His speech was well received by the majority of small business, especially when he so strongly pointed out that if Europe and America are to be united in joint defense, Europe must put up an equal share. In the meantime, American boys should be kept at home.

As it stands now, America is at an economic crossroads. But signs are encouraging.

Strongly organized independent business could become the key factor in the defense program. The new Congress may take steps to assure that the nation's independent business receives a greater share of government orders.

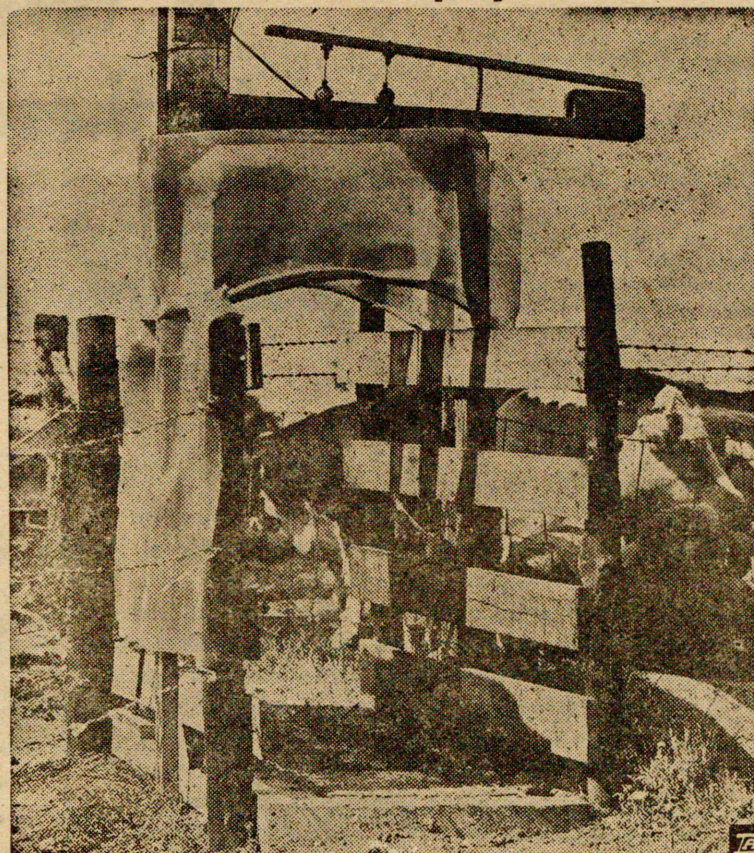

There are some who take the viewpoint that the appointment of the head of a big corporation to head up defense production, Charles Wilson of General Electric, makes such a move doubtful.

But Wilson, hailed as a production genius, is accustomed to operating mass production lines that depend on hundreds, thousands of parts suppliers. Besides, in the past, Wilson has been very cooperative with small business. He could engineer a plan whereby thousands of small manufacturers in towns all over the nation would turn out the production.

This would not only mean local payrolls, happier workers, but also greater national security in event a few large production centers were A-bombed.

It is not believed the new Congress will continue to allow so many security eggs to nest in one basket. Leaders of organized independent business may make even greater progress in this Congress.

New Cattle Sprayer

Self-spraying device for beef cattle invented by Willis N. Bruce of the Illinois Natural History Survey, Urbana, rids the animals of flies, including hard-to-control horse flies. Cattle step on treadle mounted in chute. Treadle is connected with one or two small nozzles which spray backs and sides of cattle passing through chute on way to water or salt. Plastic-coated screen wire covers nozzles to act as windshield and direct spray on animals.

SPRINGFIELD—A simple device developed by an entomologist of the Illinois Natural History Survey at Urbana may be the means of saving thousands of dollars for beef cattle raisers in the state next summer.

Dr. Harlow B. Mills, chief of the state biological research agency, which is under supervision of the State Department of Registration and Education, said the device enables beef cattle to apply to themselves a spray that rids them of horse flies, thus relieving them of suffering and giving them a chance to put on weight much faster than if pestered by the insects.

Invented by Willis N. Bruce, assistant entomologist of the survey division, the device sprays a fine mist of fly killer on the back and sides of any animal that walks across a treadle on the way to water or salt. The treadle, mounted in a chute, is attached to a rod that operates a simple hydraulic pump that forces a minute amount of concentrated spray material through small nozzles. The spray material is ten per cent piperonyl butoxide and one per cent pyrethrin.

In a test last summer, ten steers in a southern Illinois pasture with Bruce's applicator gained 900 pounds in 30 days. Ten other unsprayed steers in a nearby pasture gained 590 pounds. The 310 pounds difference represented a gain advantage for the self-sprayed steers of more than a pound per day.

The material cost about a cent per animal per day. With beef selling at about $30 per hundred or 30 cents a pound, the treatment netted a nice profit.

Bruce points out that the test was for a short period and that other tests might give somewhat different figures. However, farmers who followed the Illinois Natural History Survey experiment, which was conducted at the Dixon Springs Experiment Station of the University of Illinois, are convinced that Bruce's device will free cattle of the pain-inflicting horse flies—and other flies too—wherever they are found.

Details on how to construct the device may be obtained without cost by addressing an inquiry to the Natural History Survey at Urbana.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Friendship—Four

Thousand Miles Apart

Never quite got the hang of how to play chess myself, but I'll say this for the game—it started one of the strongest friendships I know of: between Dad Wilson in our town and a fellow in Sudbury, England.

The two of them have never met or seen each other—but for eight or nine years they've been playing chess by mail together. Dad puzzles over the Englishman's latest letter, takes a couple of days to think it over, and then airmails a chat of his next move.

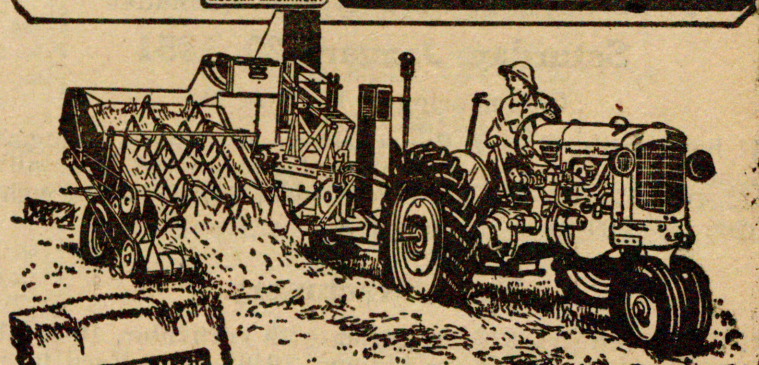

Dad always thinks best with a mellow glass of beer beside his chessboard. And the fellow in England writes that he does the same. "Almost as if we were in the same room," says Dad contentedly.

From where I sit, you can talk about diplomacy and foreign policy, but it's often little friendly things—like a game of chess or a glass of beer—that can make for tolerance and understanding . . . between people of different nations, between folks here at home!

HERE IS THE HAY BALER THAT ADJUSTS ITSELF TO ALL FIELD AND CROP CONDITIONS

It's the progressive farmer who preserves the food value of his hay, saves valuable storage space, makes hay easier to handle, saves time and manpower by harvesting his hay the modern way with the Bale-O-Matic.

THE Bale-O-Matic effortlessly lifts hay from the windrow or swath, slices it into uniform layers, and ties it with two strands of steel wire while the baler is still under compression.

THE Bale-O-Matic has a pick-up mechanism which operates equally well in green or cured hay or straw, handles light, uneven, or extra heavy windrows and swaths. The new Uni-Matic Power raises and lowers pick-up mechanism "on-the-go" over ridges and ditches.

THE Bale-O-Matic can be used as stationary baler just as it is. The sturdy, quality MM construction assures you of trouble-free service and minimum maintenance.

TAX FACTS

By George E. Mahin, Executive Secretary
Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois

A large truck and tractor loaded with steel from Pennsylvania bound for the Waukegan area, when checked for overloading recently by the Illinois State Highway police, was found to have an excess weight reported to be 22,000 pounds, or 11 tons.

The driver was fined $100, plus $4 in court costs and was required to lighten his load to the prescribed gross maximum of 22,000 pounds stipulated for his truck which was a tractor-semi trailer towing a two-axle trailer.

The truck freight rate for flat steel between Pennsylvania and Waukegan is 76 cents per hundred pounds. On the 22,000 pound overload the trucker could have made $167.20 if he had not been caught. After his fine, however, he still had a profit of $63.20 on the overload, which could be lessened by the expense and delay of lightening his load and reloading on a second vehicle.

When the trucker avoids arrest, his overload is all extra profit. Thus, it is good business for the trucker to violate the load limit laws if he can consistently get away with it. Chiseling truckers try. But the majority of the legitimate operators believe it is extremely bad business and should be halted.

Under the present law, the maximum fine for a first offender is $150, with no minimum; the second fine runs from $50 up to $250; and the third fine is from $150 to $350, all in the same year, and involving the same driver and the same vehicle. An illegitimate operator, deliberately overloading, can stay within the "first offense" category simply by alternating trucks and drivers interminably.

The Illinois law needs to be strengthened. It seems fair that funds collected for violating the truck load limit laws should be used exclusively for highway repair, maintenance, and construction. Now, if a trucker is arrested in a municipality, he is tried by a police magistrate and the fine goes to the corporate fund for street purposes. This doesn't mean, however, that there actually is more money for street purposes, because officials can divert other corporate funds originally designated for streets to other uses.

If the trucker is arrested on a country road, he is tried by the justice of the peace in the township where the arrest is made and the fine goes to the treasurer of the township road district expenditure on township roads. If the offense is committed on a state highway outside a municipality, the fine goes to the county treasurer without stipulation as to its ultimate disposition.

During the Illinois campaign against overloaded trucks, the state police have made 1,416,762 inspections and made 53,548 arrests for an overall average of 3.78 percent of offenders was about 13 per cent and more recently it has been under 2 per cent. It is estimated that fines have run about half a million dollars annually.

Sentiments expressed at recent Taxpayers' Town Meetings held in Aurora, Elgin and Joliet under auspices of the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois show the average citizen wants a stronger overweight truck law, which undoubtedly will be considered by the 1951 session of the General Assembly.

Domestics Get Social Security Jan. 1

As the first of the year approaches, many housewives employing full or part time servants are becoming anxious about their legal obligations in the matter of handling Social Security payments.

According to the January issue of Good Housekeeping magazine, which answers 35 key questions on the subject, there are an estimated one million housewives who will have to know basic facts about the law.

The word "domestics," says the article, means any person who works in or around the house, including practical nurses, furnace-men, gardeners and baby-sitters. To be affected by the law, the domestic must work 24 hours in a three-month period, starting January 1, 1951, and he must be paid at least $50 in cash wages during this period.

Listing the employer's obligations, the author says she must: "See that the domestic has a Social Security number; withhold 1 1/2 percent of his wages each time he is paid; file a return; forward the withheld tax, together with the employer's own 1 1/2 percent contribution, to the district Collector of Internal Revenue."

Pointing out that failure to furnish a statement carries a $1,000 fine or imprisonment for one year or both, the article also stresses the importance of keeping records. The employer must keep on file the name and Social Security number of the domestic, and the wages paid. The law requires that the domestic be given a statement of total wages and Social Security tax withheld.

The author reminds employers that local field offices of the Social Security Administration supply detailed information on the law.

INTRODUCING A NEW SERVICE TO LIVESTOCK FEEDERS

I have purchased a grain roller or crimper and will roll or crimp your oats, shell corn or wheat on the farm.

Rolled grain is comparatively dust free thus eliminating many digestive disorders, such as compaction and bloat, which is often caused by the fine flour found in ground grain. Each grain is simply cracked open to make an appetizing, easy to digest feed.

Many leading livestock feeders are changing to rolled grain in preference to ground or whole grain. It is also recommended by many agricultural colleges.

HEALTH TALK

By Illinois State Medical Society
CONGENITAL CLUB FEET

When a child is born with club feet, parents are oftentimes the target of suspicious and unkind remarks. This is unfair and denotes ignorance and lack of knowledge. The Educational Committee of the Illinois State Medical Society observes in a HEALTH TALK.

A congenital deformity is one which is acquired by the individual before birth. While it is true that, in some rare instances, heredity may be a factor congenital defects of which club feet is one, are usually a tribute to improper development during the prenatal period. This is a condition over which the parents have no control. Because of this, they should certainly not be censured.

A common congenital club foot is one where the foot is turned inward so that the sole is pointing backwards and the inner side of the foot is pointing upward. Generally, correction is started in the first year of life so that the child will have a straight foot and ankle when he is ready to begin weight bearing.

While surgery is frequently indicated, it is not always necessary since some cases respond to what is called over-correction. When this procedure is used, the foot is placed in an over-corrected position by application of a cast. Subsequent techniques to keep the foot in an over-corrected position include the use of corrected shoes and boots or even some form of splints.

There are instances when, after full correction has been accomplished, a tendency toward recurrence has been noted. While the actual cause of the recurrence is the contracting of fibrous tissues, it is not known why the tissue contracts in some cases and does not in others.

When this happens in the very young child, the physician might well decide to remanipulate the foot, using plaster casts and splints as was done in the very beginning. If the recurrence is noted in the older child, seven or eight years old, when the resistance of the soft tissues to over-correction is quite strong, surgery would probably be considered.

One procedure would be to cut the ligaments that hold the joints in the foot in a poor or clubbed condition. This permits the joints to open up so that they can be easily placed into the correct position and held there with a plaster cast. In healing, the defect which is made by the surgery is filled in by new fibrous tissues so that eventually the tendons and other fibrous tissues of the joints are longer than they were before the surgery.

With the accomplishments today in correcting club feet, it is no longer necessary for a child born with this defect to hobble through life as a permanent cripple. There is, of course, the occasional congenital condition which will present a problem which cannot be solved, but the majority if recognized early and given adequate treatment can be rehabilitated to a point where the individual can lead almost if not entirely a full, normal, active and healthy life.

Life of Action

Lesson for January 14, 1951

SCRIPTURE: Mark 1:21-29.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalms 145:10-21.

THEY say that in four regions of the United States there are four different questions which are asked of newcomers. In the New England states they ask a stranger "How much do you know?" In the wealthy northern states they ask, "How much have you got?" In the South where pedigrees are so much treasured, they ask: "Who was your grandfather?" But out in the wide-open west they have only one question: "What can you do?"

Dr. Foreman

Action in Religion

IT is a fair question. If the answer is "Nothing," then it does not make any difference at all what a man can answer to the other three questions.

To be sure, they look at this differently in the Orient. According to the ancient philosophy of the East, it is only the inferior man who rushes around doing things. The superior man sits and thinks. The West's admiration for action, and the Orient's admiration for contemplation, enter into religion itself. The typical Oriental "saint" may be a man who never turned his hand to a piece of work in all his life. The typical western "saint" is likely to be a very busy and active sort of person.

It is all the more interesting that Jesus combined both the western and the eastern ideas of religion. He was a man of prayer and meditation, yet a man of strenuous life too.

Life of Action

THE Gospel by Mark, reliable tradition claims, actually comes from Simon Peter. During Peter's missionary travels he used to speak often about the life and work of Jesus, and young John Mark would take down notes of what he said. Then later Mark worked up into a connected "gospel" many of those story-sermons. It is easy to believe the tradition, because this gospel sounds so much like what would appeal to Peter, a man of action.

At any rate, in Mark we have very little said about Jesus' teaching, a great deal said about what he did. Jesus does not have a spare minute, not a day off.

What about the rest of us? Suppose some biographer were to write up you who read these lines. Suppose he could use in his story only your actions, not your words or ideas. Would there be enough material for him to write a book?

Words of Power

WHILE Mark almost never tells us what Jesus taught, he does tell us that Jesus was a teacher. In describing the synagogue-service in Capernaum Mark tells us the people were astonished, and even two demon-ridden men were struck down with terror.

What Jesus said that astonished the people and alarmed the demons we do not know. Possibly Peter, who was there, may have been too busy watching people's faces to hear what Jesus was saying. However that may be, Jesus is here introduced to us not only as a deer but as a thinker, and teacher.

Life is not all action; it is also thought. Jesus' acts were full of power; so and not less so were his ideas, words, teachings. Look at the rest of us again: We may be full of talk, but how much power is there in our ideas?

Straightway

ONE word is found many times in Mark's stories of Jesus: "Straightway" as the older versions have it,—that is, immediately. It is not just Mark's style. It is his way of bringing out something important about Jesus' life and habits.

There were no blank spaces, no pages unwritten, no empty gaps, no waiting-around, in Jesus' life. In his life one activity followed on the heels of another. He had no time to waste, and he wasted none.

Let the honest reader try to make a realistic budget of his time. At the beginning of a week let him draw up a kind of chart showing how he expects to spend his 16 waking hours each day,—so much for work, recreation, study and so forth. Then at the end of the week let him ask himself: Where did my time go? He will often have to admit that he did not really live the whole day, any day,—only parts of it. Living as a Christian means living one's full time, living one of those 16 hours a day.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 11
"Peter was kept in prison; but earnest prayer for him was made to God by the church." (Acts 12:5, R.S.V.) Read Acts 12:1-10.

Not long before his death, H. G. Wells said that he had lost the cord which seemed to bind events together. He was convinced that in the present impasse there was no way out, or around, or through.

How different was the outlook of the Church when, in its dark hour, the Apostle James had been beheaded and Peter was being held captive in prison awaiting the same fate. There seemed to be no way out, or around, or through. There was, however, a way up; "earnest prayer for him was made to God by the church."

There is no prayer of man that moves God more than prayer in time of extremity. Our utter helplessness touches His fatherly heart. Gone are our pride and selfish desire. In its place is a humility which makes us willing to take God's way for our lives. It may be a desperate humility but it opens the gates to His power, just as the prayer of the Church opened the iron gate for Peter.

PRAYER
We thank Thee, our Father, that Thou hearest us when we pray. At this moment Thou art listening and loving Thy children; yes, loving even me. In the name of our Master, the Saviour of the world, Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
Circumstances cannot imprison me today; through prayer I abide in the Father's love.

Motoring Tips

A dry cloth, if used in the right places, can save motorists time, inconvenience, embarrassment — and high blood pressure.

At this time of the year when thaws and freezes are common the Chicago Motor Club points out that motorists can protect themselves and their cars from the elements by utilizing these tactics:

1. During wet weather when your car has been outside in the rain wipe the inside edges of your doors at night when you arrive home. If the mercury drops over night you won't be one of the motorists who is unable to get inside his car.
2. In the winter after having your car washed or after passing through a driving rain wipe your door locks dry. Better yet, lubricate them with a graphite grease. Water which trickles into the lock will be repelled so that a freeze-up can't occur.

3. Should your car fail to start in damp weather the chances are that your sparkplugs have been shorted by water seepage. Wipe the spark plugs and connecting wires with a cloth. In most cases this should solve your dilemma.

One more driving hint which will prove useful involves the use of your emergency brake. Chicago Motor Club technicians advise that instead of using the emergency brake when parking your car, you should leave the car in gear and turn your wheels into the curb. This will prevent the brake shoes from freezing to brake drums over night.

Four "Dos" For Pressing Wool

Keep that wool suit or dress in "tip-top" condition by pressing it correctly.

Miss Ritta Whitesel, clothing specialist, University of Illinois College of Agriculture, says that four "dos" should be followed to get the most desirable results when pressing wool:

1. Do press on the wrong side whenever possible. Use two or three press cloths to protect the wool from too much heat and to distribute the moisture evenly over the fabric. One press cloth should be of a heavy cotton twill weave material, such as drilling; the second, a light-weight cotton free from starch.

2. "Touch" up" collars, cuffs, and skirt belts on the right side, using both press cloths and following the other "dos".

3. Do use an iron temperature suitable for wool. Set the temperature gauge at "wool". Test the temperature on an inconspicuous corner before pressing the entire garment.

4. Do let some moisture remain in the material after pressing. It will help to prevent harshness and a possible shiny surface.

5. Use the right amount of pressure on the iron by lowering it gently on the damp press cloth. Lift the iron and place it with the lengthwise grain of the material. Do it so that the covered areas overlap. Pushing or shoving the iron may push the material off grain and result in bagginess.

THE next few weeks will see a newcomer topping the "best seller" list in rural America when farmers are buying their 1951 farm account books. Although every year sees more farmers coming around to the good business practice of keeping records, there are still too many who neglect this important financial side of agriculture.

One of the most important reasons for keeping a farm record is for tax purposes. The farm record book should classify both income and expense to conform with government income tax forms. Keeping of such a record doesn't at all mean that income taxes will take a bigger bite out of your farm income. By keeping a complete record, the farmer can take advantage of many deductions, business expense write-offs and other savings which may otherwise escape his attention.

Farm records should give complete information on a host of items. Some of these are cash receipts, classified according to sources. For instance, sales of crops, livestock or equipment, and rentals. A second category is cash expenditure according to the income tax report classifications. Other items are complete inventories of real estate, livestock, farm equipment, feed and other supplies, and depreciation schedules for depreciable items. If you have neglected keeping farm records, why not give it a try in 1951? Books have been prepared to make the job as simple as possible, and you'll find that figures can be fascinating—especially when they reflect good farm management with substantial profits.

The Hoover Commission found that paperwork on a single government purchase costs more than $10.00. Yet half of the three million purchase orders each year are for items costing $10.00 or less.

PAPER WORK COSTS more than the item itself on many government purchase orders. The average citizen pays the bill for lack of cost-accounting, red tape and failure to use modern, efficient methods. That's why the non-partisan Hoover Commission recommended a sweeping revision of current buying procedures, asked for a new Office of General Services. 50% of the Hoover Commission recommendations have already been carried out; the remainder await enactment into law. Public opinion will decide how soon America obtains better government at a better price!

In 1886, machines were set up in the New York Tribune, Chicago Daily News, Chicago Inter-Ocean and Louisville Courier-Journal. It was Whitelaw Reid of the New York Tribune who, seeing the cast line of type, gave it the name, "linotype."

Says the Foundation, "Seventy per cent of arthritis victims can be restored to active, useful living" without the ticklish-to-use and scarce new drugs, cortisone and ACTH.

The Foundation is a legitimate, non-profit organization dedicated to the downfall of arthritis—an affliction said to affect over 7½ million Americans.

The following coupon, mailed to The Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, 69 West Washington Street, Chicago 2, Illinois, will serve as a request for the latest expert survey of arthritis and methods of treatment.

WILL YOU kindly send free literature on arthritis and rheumatism and means to fight it?
